Spotlight

High Valley Arts

High Valley Arts began from a love for the theater and what it can do for people, both performers and audience members. High Valley Arts focuses on a high level of performance and at the same time, incorporates new people into their shows and management teams with the concept that they will spend whatever time is necessary to make sure new people learn the things that make live theater such a wonderful gift!

Every summer, High Valley Arts produces a show to be performed outside. This year, their production of Fiddler on the Roof is sure to please audiences. Working with a new directing team this year, it has been exciting to see things come together. Sue Waldrip, chair of the board, comments "It's exciting & gratifying to see them do so well. Their successes teach us new things as our entire community works together to bring the joys of live theater to one of the loveliest spots on earth - Wasatch County!"

Last year, the Arts Council began working with the Kroger Co. to enlist a local artist for a mural in the new Smith's Marketplace store. Through a proposal process, John Moore was selected to paint the mural. The new store opens on July 20 & we hope that each time you visit the store, you will enjoy John's mural depicting all the beauty of the Heber Valley.
